Broker Application Guidelines

(Mandatory Reading)

December 20, 2025

I. Before Proceeding, Please Confirm One Thing

Within the B.FED Community, a broker is neither a speculative role

nor an "elite player." You will assume a clear-cut identity: Liquidity

Executor + Performance Liability Undertaker under System

Pricing If you are seeking to:

- Manipulate prices freely
- Gamble on price fluctuations
- Enter or exit at will without restrictions

Then B.FED's broker mechanism is not suitable for you.

II. What Exactly Does a B.FED Broker Do?

In a nutshell: Consistently and genuinely place buy orders at system-determined prices, and complete transactions within 15 minutes of successful order matching.

You do not need to:

- Analyze market trends
- Guess price movements
- Bear the risk of price fluctuations

You only need to:

- Place genuine buy orders
- Fulfill obligations promptly
- Complete transactions in accordance with rules

III. How Do You Earn Profits? (Perfectly Clear)

Current Transaction Prices:

- Regular Members ↔ Brokers: $0.3283 per Nectar
- Brokers ↔ Brokers: $0.2854 per Nectar (no handling fees)

Your Profit Sources:

- Purchase Cost: $0.2854 per Nectar
- Selling Price: $0.3283 per Nectar
- Fixed Single-Transaction Spread: $0.0428 per Nectar

This is service revenue, not speculative gain. You profit from:

- Execution efficiency
- Response speed
- Stable performance

IV. Core Rules You Must Understand (Extremely Important)

1. Placing an Order Equals a Commitment

Within B.FED: Once you place a buy order, you are committing to accept the corresponding quantity of Nectar. This is not an "intention" but a binding commitment to fulfill the transaction.

2. 15-Minute Performance Deadline (Hard Rule)

After successful order matching:

- The system starts counting down immediately
- Transactions must be completed within 15 minutes

Failure to meet the deadline constitutes non-performance. The system will not consider reasons or accept explanations.

3. Inaction Is Worse Than Refusal

The following behaviors will be deemed violations:

- Failure to confirm orders
- Failure to respond
- Deliberate delays

- Being uncontactable after placing orders

Wasting users' time is inherently disruptive to the system.

V. Why Is Collateral Required? (Not What You Think)

The sole purpose of collateral is: To ensure you "keep your word."

It is not:

- A fee
- A commission
- Community revenue

It is instead: A credit constraint on your ability to fulfill obligations.

Collateral Rules Are Simple:

- Collateral Asset: Nectar
- Locked by the system, non-usable
- The maximum number of buy orders you can place depends on your collateral tier

VI. What Happens If You Fail to Complete a Transaction?

First Default

- Warning issued and violation recorded; no penalty imposed

Second Default

- Deduction of collateral Nectar

Third Default

- Revocation of broker status
- Full refund of remaining collateral
- Cooling-off period applies; reapplication permitted after expiration

The entire process is automated with no manual intervention.

VII. Under What Circumstances Will You Thrive?

You are an ideal fit for becoming a B.FED broker if you:

- Possess executive discipline
- Do not rely on speculation for income
- Value long-term, predictable returns
- Accept that rules take precedence over personal judgment

VIII. Under What Circumstances Should You Not Apply?

Do not become a B.FED broker if you:

- Want to "decide whether to accept orders based on circumstances"
- Cannot guarantee a 15-minute response time
- Are accustomed to gray areas
- Resent rules and constraints

This is not a matter of ability but a mismatch of roles.

IX. Risk Disclosures You Must Be Aware Of

- You do not bear price fluctuation risks
- You do bear performance risks
- The system will not compensate for your delays
- All rules are publicly disclosed in advance and will not be revised retroactively

This is a "low-volatility, high-discipline" role.

X. Why Has B.FED Been Designed This Way?

Because B.FED is not a short-term market but a long-term community.

We prioritize:

- Stability > Excitement
- Rules > Flexibility
- Performance > Promises
- System Trust > Personal Credit

Conclusion (Please Read Carefully)

Being a broker is not a privileged status but a responsible one.

If you are willing to exchange compliance with rules for stable returns, If you agree that "placing an order is a commitment," If you wish to become a trusted part of the system—Then you are welcome to join B.FED as a broker.
